RICHMOND, VA., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1886.

ONE CENT.

period when nuggets of silver will unwind from the splendid power of our last being caught, trained and made at the will of the wheels of our machinery is going to the South, and not, as matter to the machine which is brought back to the place of origin and sold as manufactured goods.

England is a land of fine pasture and extensive flocks of sheep were fed, and they sold to the Flemings and Lombards, who manufactured it into cloth and was not until the time of Edward II fourteen hundred years after the period which England's "history of reason" began—that Flemish weavers were brought into the Kingdom to teach the art after which she manufactured her products at home.

The South is now taking the "green stalks of her past, and forming them into a new and more useful, so firm, and yet so flexible, as to wrap around the limbs of the machine, and move with it in every movement of the day, and in laws and customs to adapt itself to the machine, as almost to receive the "venetian" of the "woven" of the Romans.

WHAT THE FUTURE WILL DO.

I speak of this, because, while occupying the position, you do of knowing no North, no East, or no West, it will give you a measure to know that the South will continue her proportionate share to the more grandeur and glory of the American Republic.

The old mother of Presidents to-day welcomes a new President of the United States, and I know that I voice the sentiments of the vast multitude when I tender to you and the distinguished citizens and statesmen who accompany you a sincere, hearty and cordial welcome to Virginia. Virginia not only feels the most profound veneration for the high office whose duties you so fully discharge, but they respect the man who fills it. We share, sir, the feeling of reverence elsewhere, that under your administration the destiny of the country has been committed to wise, conservative, and safe hands, and that constitutional liberty is secure.

But liberty which has been secured, and which covers with its shade the surface, whose roots shoot deep through the soil, and entwined around the eternal rocks, that to pull it down the earth itself must be upturned.

We, Mr. President, that you will stand firm in the defence of the principle of government inaugurated by the fathers; the mutterings of discontent become hollow-toned, and recoil from your armor of right as the dashing reboiled from the rock-bared be of the ocean.

STAND LIKE ANOTHER MOSES.

From thorny night of the past we seem to stand on the mountain top, another Moses—bearing on in yowls, with erect brow and resolute the tables of the law while marking without fear of obstacle or doubt of victory.

My administration bring to the whole country, life and hope; and may the "twain" ascend to our father's God that "twain" has been beaten into the poughs, and the spear into the prying hood that State shall not lift up its arm against State, neither shall it now waver, but that the reign of peace and prosperity shall be as lasting as the stars—as eternal as the foundations of the everlasting hills.

President Cleveland's Address.

Col. Beverley introduced President Cleveland after which went up from the grocerhouse of people as the President advanced, and when the applause subsided he spoke as follows:

Fellow Citizens of Virginia.

While I thank you most sincerely for your kind reception and recognition in its heartiness the day for which the people of Virginia have been distinguished, I am fully aware that your demonstration of welcome is tendered not to an individual, but to an incumbent of the office which crowns the government of the United States. The State of Virginia, Mother of Presidents, seven of whom have been elected to high office, to-day greets a President who or the first time meets Virginia upon Virginia soil. [Applause.]

I congratulate myself that my first introduction to the people of Virginia occurs at a time when they are surrounded by the exhibits of the productivity and prosperity of their land. Whatever there may be of honor, her history, and however much of pride there may be in her traditions, her true greatness is here exemplified. In our sisterhood States, the leading and most commanding place must be gained and kept by the Commonwealth which, by a labor and intelligence of her citizens, can produce the most of those things which are the necessities and desires of mankind. [Applause.] But the full advent of that which may be yielded to the State by the toil and ingenuity of her people, is not measured alone by the money value of the product. The efforts and the struggles of her farmers and her artisans, not only create new values in the field of agriculture, and in arts and manufactures, but they at the same time produce rugged, self-reliant and independent men, and cultivate that product which more than all others endow a State—a patriotic, earnest American citizenship. This will flourish in every part of the American domain; neither drouth nor rain can injure it, for it takes root in true hearts enriched by love of country. There are no new varieties in this production; it must be the same wherever seen, and its quality is neither sound nor genuine unless it grows to deck and beautify

nor unless it supports and sustains the institutions and the Government founded to protect American liberty and happiness. [Loud applause.]

The present administration of the Government is pledged to return for such husbandry, not only promises, but actual tenders of fairness and justice, with equal protection and a full participation in national achievements.

If in the past we have been estranged, and the cultivation of American citizenship has been interrupted, your enthusiastic welcome of to-day demonstrates that there is an end to such estrangement, and that the time of suspicion and fear is succeeded by an era of faith and confidence.

In such a kindly atmosphere and beneath such cheering skies, I greet the people of Virginia as co-laborers in the field where flows the love of our united country. [Cheers.]

God grant that in the years to come Virginia—the Old Dominion—the mother of presidents—she who looked on the nation at its birth—may not only increase her trophies of growth in agriculture and manufactures, but that she may be among the first of all the States in the cultivation of true American citizenship. [Prolonged cheers.]

When President Cleveland concluded Col. Beverley introduced in the order named Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, Secretary of State; Hon. William Endicott, Secretary of War, and Hon. Norman J. Colman, Commissioner of Agriculture of the United States.

A HEARTY WELCOME.

A community in the whole country could better appreciate a visit from the Democratic President than this, where he represents to the hearts of the people the great rescue achieved when the Southern States had lain so long under the fear of Radical rule, and manacled with a threat of something more than ordinary despotism.

Richmond put on her holiday attire and the air was filled with martial music as the President appeared for the first time at the gates of the South.

After the speeches by the President and his party were escorted to the Centennial building. Here all the military passes in review and saluted the President and his party. After this a reception was held, and the President shook hands with all that came to pay their respects. Lunch was served at 2:30 o'clock.

WHAT IS TO BE SEEN.

It must not be supposed that there was nothing of interest at the Fair Grounds but the President and his party. Apart from this great attraction the Fair is one of the best we have ever had. The cattle and horse department is well filled, and the exhibition is a good one. In all of the department will be found much to interest, amuse and instruct.

To-day is the best one for those who really desire to see all that is on exhibition. The art gallery, the main exhibition hall, the mechanical department, and, in fact, all over the grounds, there is an abundance of novelties. To-day, besides the cricket match, there will be bicycle races, trotting and other races, and many other attractions.

The President at the Soldiers' Home.

Yesterday evening President Cleveland visited the Soldiers' Home. He was accompanied by Governor Lee and the other dignitaries who had accompanied him during the day. Eleven guns were fired as he entered the grounds.

He shook hands with all of the veterans, and spent a short while in viewing the beautiful Fleming building and the colleges and grounds.

As he left the ground while they were firing the remaining guns of the presidential salute one of the gunners failed to properly serve the vent and the charge exploded, severely and probably fatally injuring one of the veterans named Jones who was acting as swabber. One of the unfortunate man's arms was so badly injured as to require amputation and both eyes were blown out.

Capt. Phillips was struck by a piece of the ramrod; another piece struck a tree just in front of Gen. Anderson's staff.

Jones is a native of Maine, and entered the army from Georgia. He is popular with his comrades and is a first-class artillery man.

The sad accident threw a gloom over the party, but happily happened after the departure of the presidential party. After leaving the Home the cortege proceeded to the New Reservoir and lake, and thence to Gamble's Hill, and thence to the Governor's house.

The President Visits Governor and Mrs. Lee, and Miss Winnie Davis.

It was 6 o'clock when President Cleveland arrived at the Governor's house. He was received by Governor and Mrs. Lee, the Governor's mother and Miss Winnie Davis. The stay at the Governor's did not occupy more than twenty minutes, and the party were driven to the train, as will be found elsewhere.

At the train the President was presented by Mrs. Jos. R. Gill, superintendent of the Male Orphan Asylum, and Miss Mamie Trahern, the daughter of R. E. Lee Camp, with some lovely flowers, for which the President returned hearty thanks.

The Late Movements of the President—Departure for Washington.

After the public reception and lunch President Cleveland went out to the Soldiers' Home. An account of what took place there will be found elsewhere.

The President and party left the gubernatorial mansion shortly after 6 o'clock under an escort of a detachment from the Stuart Horse Guards, and proceeded rapidly up Broad street to Elba station, where the special train was in readiness to receive them.

Mr. Cleveland was accompanied by Governor Lee, Colonel Buford, Major E. T. D. Myers, and other citizens who went up there to say good-bye.

A large crowd had assembled to see the President, and as the carriage drew up containing him he was greeted with loud cheers.

He hastily stepped aboard, and had hardly time to shake hands with the gentlemen present before the train moved off.

The President Safe at Home.

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 21.—The return trip of the presidential special from Richmond was without incident, and but one or two brief stops were made. Upon arrival at Washington at 10 P. M. the President and members of the Cabinet were immediately driven to their respective homes. The President and members of the party expressed themselves as having greatly enjoyed their visit.

Flowers for Mrs. Cleveland.

R. E. Lee Camp, Confederate Veterans, through Major Thomas A. Brainer, presented President Cleveland with a beautiful bouquet. It was originally designed for Mrs. Cleveland, but she being unavoidably detained, the present was sent through the President. The bouquet was from H. A. Catlin's, and was arranged in the best style of art by Mrs. C. E. Roper.

Meeting of the State Agricultural Society—Election of Officers.

The Virginia Agricultural Life Members met in Wilkinson's Hall last night, with Mr. Edmund R. Cocke, of Powhatan, as chairman, and Mr. George W. Mayo, as secretary.

It was a great deal of difficulty to get a quorum, but after a while the required number were obtained.

Col. Beverley states that the state of the society is as good if not better than last year. There are $1,200 in the bank, and $20,000 worth of State bonds. The ticket sales up to last night were $8,000, exclusive of the tickets sold by the railroads and in the city.

His report was adopted.

General Wickham presented the following resolution, which was received after some debate:

Resolved, That the secretary and treasurer upon the order of the President is hereby authorized and directed to collect and invest funds or place to the credit of the Society in bank any arrears of interest or claims due the Society by the State of Virginia.

Colonel Robert Beverley, of Fauquier, was nominated for president by General Wickham, and he was unanimously elected. He accepted in a neat speech.

Colonel A. S. Buford was unanimously elected vice-president.

There were four vacancies in the Executive Committee which were filled by Mr. Ashton Starke, of Richmond; Col. R. T. W. Duke, of Albemarle; Dr. Reed, of Orange, and Colonel J. D. H. Rose, of Fredericksburg.

Adjourned.

Visitors to the City.

Among many other visitors in the city noticed yesterday were Judge Thomas J. Christian and wife and Lewis L. Smith, of West Point; Rev. J. E. Hammond, formerly pastor of the Manchester Meade Memorial church; W. T. Shields, Lexington; Mrs. A. V. Tripler, New York; Emmett Totty, Lynchburg; J. H. D. Lewis and Leo P. Wheat, Clarke county, and General J. C. Hill, Scottsville.

A Handsome Cane.

There is on exhibition at the jewelry store of Nowlan & Co. a very handsome gold headed cane. The cane is to be voted to the most popular candidate for Congress at the approaching fair of the Little Sisters of the Poor.

The Army of Northern Virginia--

The Reunion and Banquet.

The annual re-union of the Army of Northern Virginia was held last night in the hall of the House of Delegates. Gen. W. B. Taliaferro presided.

General Early offered a resolution electing Miss Winnie Davis an honorary member of the Association. Adopted amid loud cheering, and General Early was appointed to escort Miss Davis to the President's stand. General Taliaferro invested Miss Davis with the badge amid rapturous cheering.

Mr. Lewis Ginter was appointed on the Executive Committee.

Colonel McCrady, of South Carolina, delivered the address. The subject was "Organization, Characteristics and Stabula of the Army of Northern Virginia." The address was received with great satisfaction.

After the address the annual banquet was given at Sanger Hall. The menu was an elegant one and the speeches worthy of the occasion.

Came to the Fair.

Yesterday the city looked like a bride in her wedding dress suddenly left forlorn. Everybody was at the Fair and nothing could be gotten out of anybody except the ever able newspaper man who has to stand at his post all the time with the chance of being found three ages after an earthquake, like the famous Roman sentry at Pompeii.

A scribe went down into the barber-shop near the postoffice to get his beard filed off.

"Where is the Professor?"
"Gone to de Fair, sah."

"Is any other tonsorial artist present?"

"Me, boss."

"Where is the foot fresco painter?"

"You Toby, cum here, you speckled coon, and brack gentleman's boots."

"Chorus in the distance: 'Toby done gone to de Fair.'"

The Cricket Match.

Those of our readers who are interested in cricket will be delighted to learn that the Virginia team of Englishmen will play a return match with Baltimore to-day on the Fair Grounds, play to begin at 10 A. M.

The Virginia team is composed of: Creyke, A. P. Morewood, W. V. Lloyd, T. R. Wiles, W. J. Parry, H. H. Carr, J. Corbett, W. R. Woon, and A. Brisco. Umpire, T. Green.

The score of the former match played at Baltimore on August 31st and September 1st was—Virginia, 66 and 122; Baltimore, 172 and 17 for four wickets.

Mr. Wilmer proved most useful for Virginia by making forty-one runs and getting rid of eight of his opponents. He was ably assisted by Messrs. Carr, Morewood, and Wyles.

A Fine Vessel.

The new steam-sailing vessel Linda Park now lying at Rocketts has been visited by a great number of citizens who state that she is the finest vessel that ever entered this port. She is commanded by Captain Thomas Skinner, who very kindly gave all the information about the construction. The Linda Park is a very suitable vessel for the flour trade between Richmond and Brazil. Her dimensions are: Length, 150 feet; breadth, 26 feet 6 inches; depth of hold, 12 feet, and carries 550 tons on 12 feet 2 inches. This fine vessel belongs in Belfast, Ireland, and is owned by J. W. Valentine of that port.

Resignation and Appointment.

Prof. L. R. Holland, secretary of the Board of Education, has been forced to resign on account of failing health. Mr. J. A. McGilvray has been appointed to fill the vacancy. Mr. Samuel Smith, of Scott county, has been appointed second clerk in the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Odd Fellows' Reunion.

Wednesday night the Odd Fellows Encampments of Richmond were entertained by Schiller Lodge at Concordia Hall. Grand Patriarch Sherwood and Patriarchs Pearce, Spitzer, and other eminent Odd Fellows were present, and a happy evening was spent. Richmond Odd Fellowship is on a boom.

Monte Cristo at the Academy.

So great has been the success of Monte Cristo at the Academy that the management have decided to continue it for the remainder of the week. The Academy was crowded last night, and all who admire fine scenery and good acting should avail themselves of these last opportunities.

At Corcoran Hall.

To-night the East End Trubadours will give one of their inimitable performances under the auspices of Charity Lodge, I. O. G. T. At the close of the concert there will be a select hop, and a hot lunch will be served.

Democratic Rally.

There will be a grand Democratic rally in Clay Ward, on Main street above Pine, to-night, at 8 o'clock. Hon. J. T. Harris, Hon. R. H. Cardwell, and Hon. Henry L. Carter will address the meeting. Every Democrat in the city is invited to attend.

Police Court.

The following cases were disposed of yesterday, Justice D. C. Richardson presiding:

A. R. Smith and George H. Lafond, driving their team in a reckless manner on the street. Smith was fined $5; Lafond was fined $2.50.

J. F. Champlin was sent on to the grand jury to answer the charge of resisting the police.

Seymour, the hermit, was charged with vagrancy. He was committed to jail in default of security.

Mary, John, and Vincent Baccigalupo, charged with assaulting and beating Ella Harris. The accused were bailed for their appearance to-day.

Ella Jackson and Ella Harris (both colored), charged with assault and battery. The case was continued till to-day.

Edward Williams and J. F. Champlin, charged with being disorderly in the street. The case was dismissed.

Charles Farris (colored), charged with assaulting and striking Fannie Miles with a rock. Fined $5 and cost.

The Wilbur Opera Company.

Girode-Giroffa was presented at the Theatre to a large and enthusiastic audience last night. To-night Mikado will be produced. This company is said to give the best performance ever seen in Richmond. Miss Susie Kirwin is a capital Yum-Yum, and Mr. Wheelan the finest Ko-Ko on the boards. The house will no doubt be packed.
